Course Description:

This course studies the political, economic, geographic, and social processes that shaped the United States from the pre-Columbian era to post-Civil War Reconstruction. Placing special interest on the impact social conditions exerted on political development in the United States allows for the evaluation of government policy in American expansion. As a result, territorial gains and political influence greatly affected development in the western hemisphere. The goal of the course is to analyze events for their contemporary impact and identify their antecedents and future outcomes on American history and its global influence. This course will include a hybrid format in assessment and material presentation where content will be delivered during standard class time and interactive use of Blackboard activities. Participation through online assessments and discussion boards, along with media presentations, and in-class open and small group discussions is required.

- 1. This is a survey of the political, social, economic, military, cultural and intellectual history of the United States from the discovery of America to the Civil War.

Instructor Outcomes:

All homework and readings is designed to allow an in depth discussion and is mandatory. Note taking, Levels of Questioning Activities, Quizzes, and Exams will be used to assess work both through Blackboard and in-class. Participation and discussion will also factor in considerably.

Cheating is not tolerated in this course. If you are caught cheating, you will receive an automatic F in the course. The same policy holds true for homework and group assignments. Doing work together should not be confused with copying work from one another. Use group work to help and teach each other. Plagiarism on any writing assignment constitutes cheating. This policy includes improper use of the Internet. To discourage plagiarism, all written (typed) assignments must be submitted through the SafeAssign portal in Blackboard. Late Work: All assignments must be turned in on the date specified on your course outline or on the date announced in class. Late work will not be accepted except in case of a medical absence. All of the work is designed to help you gain a greater understanding of the content.

Attendance: Attendance is essential to success. Be prepared for lengthy and long-term assignments (Reading assignments and assessment). In this class students are expected to be responsible for some of their own learning. Late work in case of absence follows the general policy of the institution. It is the student's responsibility to check in and find out what was missed or to turn in work if they missed a deadline due to sickness/family emergency.

If a student misses class on the day of a test, it is imperative that the student makes up the test within two days of their return to class. A missed exam due to absence will not be made up as the lowest exam grade will be dropped. Under instructor discretion, student(s) with more than 3 absences will be dropped from the course.

Department Course Requirements:

Blackboard: As a hybrid course, Blackboard will be used to introduce, present, discuss, and assess covered material. Participation with the Course Homepage on Blackboard is MANDATORY. During the first two weeks you are required to login to the homepage and post on the discussion board. If you do not know how to do this, ask the instructor. All Blackboard elements can be done from the free computer labs on campus, from any public library computer, and from your personal device.

Discussion Board: You will be required to post and respond to discussions on Blackboard on a weekly basis. Discussion topics will be posted every Monday. You are required to submit a minimum 150-word comment by noon Thursday, after which, you are asked to review classmates' posts and respond to two comments with a minimum 80-word reply. It is important to remember that this will be a "safe space" where tolerance is expected and personal views respected.

Assessments: Online quizzes and assessments will be done through Blackboard. The survey textbook is divided into five units, each consisting of three chapters. You will take a quiz weekly and an assessment every third week. In order to take quizzes/assessments you must download the Lockdown Browser. It will restrict navigation on your computer while testing. Quizzes and Assessments will only be accessible using this software. It can be downloaded from STC Homepage by searching "Lockdown Browser."
